LUTHER BROS.' CARBORUNDUM TOOL GRINDER.

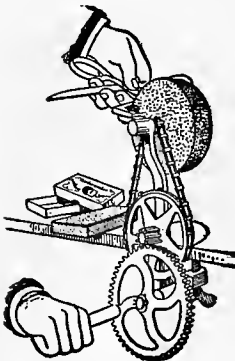

SUITABLE FOR EVERY PERSON.

Write for Particulars, as this grinds Twenty Times Faster than an Ordinary Grinder.

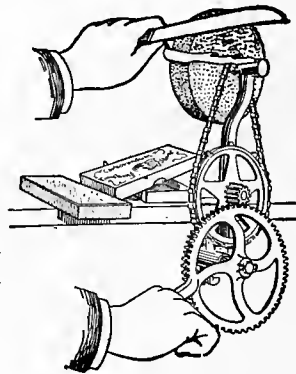

The "Saturday Evening Post," 10th May 1902, says of Carborundum:—

"Who among ordinary laymen would dream that Carborundum is entitled to be called an epoch-making product? Yet it is so put down by the world's engineers. There is practically no division of human life in which it does not figure to-day. It is the Greatest Abrasive Ever Known, and is used alike for polishing the egg-cup on the breakfast table, and shaping the piston of the great ocean greyhound. It hones the razor, puts an edge on the sword, polishes the diamond, points the tool that punches rivet holes in the armour of the great battleship. It polishes the shoe sole, the kid glove, and smoothes down the angles of the great telescope lens. Mr Acheson served six years under Edison in America and Europe, and thoroughly mastered the science of electricity. One day, as if by inspiration, he recalled that in one of his experiments that the fusing of clay and carbon produced a substance harder than anything then known. Comparing it with emery, corundum, and other abrasives, the fact was forced upon Mr Acheson that he had a fortune within his grasp. How well he mastered the situation is demonstrated in the fact that while Carborundum to-day is sold at a nominal figure, the first consignment was for 200 carats at 1s. 6d. a carat."
